As most people know Freda took great pride in her appearance rather it was her hair, her home or her flower garden. She had such a passion for her flower beds, the love for all the stray cats in the neighborhood, and feeding the birds. She had a good eye for and loved collecting antiques of all kinds. She loved sitting at her kitchen table watching the humming birds while reading a good book and having a cup of coffee.

The highlights of her life were her Grandkids and Christmas. She always looked forward to decorating and preparing things for Christmas knowing how much fun and laughter it was going to bring. Christmas at "Grans" was a special time for all the family as well.

Freda and Wilburn were blessed with 5 children whom survive her.
