Gina loved being a wife and mother. Her and her husband loved to travel and go camping and meet new people. She was proud of her son and they shared many interests including genealogy and their love of animals. They all enjoyed the company of their dog, Bandit.

Gina took any opportunity she could to meet new people and turn them into lifelong friends. She was a talker and loved to share her stories and in turn to hear your story. She really enjoyed crocheting, knitting and crafting and shared this gift with many family, friends and strangers that became friends through her art. During these times she was teaching she was talking, not just about the project at hand but also about her love of Jesus and her love for her family.

But most of all, she treasured her family and the time she was able to spend with them. She had many nieces and nephews and each of them were a treasure in her heart.
