Drakyn James Stadler was born July 24, 2008, the son of Micayah and Ashley (Thiesen) Stadler, Buffalo. He died May 5, 2010, of a rare intestinal condition. He loved fishing, taking rides on the four-wheeler, watching Mickey Mouse, talking on the phone, hanging out with his Da in the yard and driving the truck with his daddy and GaGa.

He was always happy, and there was hardly a time you would see him without a smile on his face. He was smart and loved making new friends.

A few memories his momma will always keep close to her heart will be his pretty smile, his laugh, how he loved pretending to be a horse, and how he would stop playing to come give kisses and hugs.

He will be remembered most for his ability to make every animal sound, including an elephant, coyote and monkey. He will also be remembered for his dimples and his ability to make everyone smile.

He was preceded in death by his great-grandfathers: John Thiesen and John Stadler; and paternal great-grandmother, Rosie Virgil.

Survivors include his parents; his maternal grandparents, Henry and Pam Thiesen; paternal grandparents: Robert and Jill Stadler and Jackie Stadler; maternal great-grandparents: Dorothy McDowell and Ann Thiesen; paternal great-grandparents: Kurt and Dee Kamler and Tony Vigil; and many aunts, uncles, cousins, church family and friends who will miss him very much.
