She was saved as a young girl at a revival meeting, was baptized and joined Thorpe Baptist Church.

She worked hard on the farm and milked cows for over 40 years. After her husband died, she moved to Buffalo where she worked at Key Industries for a while. She worked at Bison Inn Cafe and worked for many of the business people in Buffalo, cleaning houses, baby-sitting and ironing or anything else to help them out.

Her favorite work was sewing, making crafts and many beautiful quilts, which she gave to her children and grandchildren.

Every Sunday morning she made fried chicken and mashed potatoes and gravy for the family until she was 94 years old. She never missed a Sunday whether anyone came or not.
